On the occasion of the 200th Anniversary of the University of Bonn, we would like to invite all those who join us in promoting the topic One Health in global networks to an international networking event:

One Health Network Meeting

including the opening of the 2. Joint Summer School “One Health & Sustainability” organized by the Thematic University Network TUNEQA

The meeting aims to help cross borders and barriers between different disciplines, healthcare professionals from different countries and public and private sector organisations worldwide.

In the scope of the 2. Joint Summer School, which will be opened on this day, lecturers from all over the world representing different disciplines will explain to the students that collaborative meetings are essential for the One Health movement.

In addition, the GISKOHN initiative will be presented to the public for the first time. In order to maintain valuable personal cross-border contacts and to facilitate the transfer of knowledge and the search for suitable project partners, the idea of setting up GISKOHN as a platform was born to consolidate international One Health network structures. The organizers are convinced that the International One Health & Food Safety Congress 2018 in Bonn is just the right time to transform GISKOHN into a hub for important topics such as reduction of antibiotic use, new early-warning systems and joint strategies for the prevention of zoonoses and food-borne diseases.

Since we believe in partnership and open-mindedness as positive forces for change, we want to give actors from different fields the opportunity to share their knowledge and to inspire each other.

We look forward to an open dialogue and interesting encounters!
